Human beings are special. There are a lot of commonalities amongst us, our human mechanism is very similar, we go through similar emotions, exhibit similar behavior and yet in many ways we are different. Every human being is unique; every individual is born with unique skills, unique talents, potential and a blueprint of our purpose. Each one of us is capable of experiencing immense joy, happiness, grace and a purposeful life. The joy of life is unique, even though we are born with the potential; it is we who create the laughter, happiness, fun around us. In that sense we are the creators of our own experience- we create an experience and we go through that experience. How many of us know that it is in our hands to create joy, create happiness, create moments of exhilaration, create the feelings of being special, create the beautiful moments of love, create a disease free life, and rid us of the most debilitating physiological and psychological issues. And despite this deep inner knowing, there are times when most of us feel lost and seek answers from outside.

The answers are transient, because they come from somebody else. We believe and then the very next adverse experience strips us away from the trust and belief. There is a sense of questioning and doubt, followed by self doubt, loss of faith and then one spirals back to where one started. The cycle of trust and doubt, keeps us stuck and makes us feel weak, helpless, frustrated, confused and imbues our life with a sense of routine and purposelessness.

It is possible to break this vicious cycle- it is possible to feel the power within, it is possible to feel the divinity within. There is nothing one has to do to feel it. The message is always there, the spark of the divine energy is always present, is always showing us the way. There are some very simple ways of realizing this deep knowledge within. The knowledge goes beyond the power of the mind; it goes further than one's expectations and stereotypes. It is very simple and yet beyond anything that we can imagine and think. To realize it we have to be ready- that is essential. And yet it is not always easy to get out of the well that we have dug for ourselves on our own. We need a helping hand, a mirror to show us who we are.

It gives us great pleasure to invite you to a very special event, an event where we hope that you will be introduced to yourself.

Rashmi Aiyappa, Spiritual Scientist, experiences her life as a part of the universal phenomenon. As a part of this phenomenon, she experiences creation in its entirety.

There are times, when the universe sends people to this world to bring the nature back to its origins, where all living and non living beings exist in a state of deep harmony, love and grace, where all actions flow out of love and not fear, hatred or worry. A single human being through fear, worry and doubts can impact the environment more than the external parameters.
